THE NEEDHAM
Musical Cabinet

PRICE, $60.

DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS FREE.

THIS new and wonderful Instrument enables any one, whether understanding music or not, to play any desired melody or harmony, sacred or secular, from the most plaintive dirge to the most lively dance music. It possesses a mechanism of marvelous simplicity, requiring but the intelligence of a child to manipulate, yet capable of reproducing, without limitation, the musical compositions of the PAST, PRESENT and FUTURE. The execution is faultless, strict in melody, harmony and rhythm, and the instrument is eminently adapted for Sunday Schools, prayer and revival meetings, home devotional exercises, and in all cases where good, correct music is required, and no musician is at hand to perform. THE TIME TO DIE.

Bryant's Wishes Fulfilled.

One of the sweetest of William Cullen Bryant's poems is the following, which will be read with peculiar interest at this time:

I gazed upon the glorious sky,
And the green mountains round,
And thought that when I came to lie
At rest within the ground,
'Twere pleasant that in flowery June,
When brooks send up a cheerful tune,
And gives a cheerful sound,
The sexton's hand, my grave to make,
The rich, green mountain-turf should break.

A cell within the frozen mould,
A coffin borne through sleet,
And icy clods above it rolled,
While fierce the tempests beat—
Away!—I will not think of these
Blue be the sky and soft the breeze,
Earth green beneath the feet,
And be I e damp mould gently pressed
Into my narrow place of rest.

There, through the long, long Summer hours,
The golden light should lie,
And thick young herbs and groups of flowers
Stand in their beauty by.
The oriole should build and tell
His love-tale close beside my cell;
The idle butterfly
Should rest Lim there, and there be heard
The busy bee and humming bird.

And what if cheerful shouts at noon
Come from the village sent,
Or song of maids beneath the moon
With fairy laughter blent?
And what if, in the evening light,
Betrothed lovers walk in sight
Of my low monument?
I would the lovely scene around
Might know no sadder sight nor sound.

I know that I no more should see
The season's glorious show,
Nor would its brightness shine for me,
Nor its wild music flow;
But if, around my place of sleep,
The friends I love should come to weep,
They might not haste to go.
Soft air, and song, and light and bloom
Should keep them at my tomb.

These to their softened heart should bear
The thought of what has been,
And speak of one who cannot share
The gladness of the scene;
Whose part, in all the pomp that fills
The circuit of the Summer hills,
Is that his grave is green;
And deeply would their hearts rejoice
To hear again his living voice.

Mistaken Kindness.

Under a spreading thistle leaf
A grass bird built her nest,
And there her little brood she fed,
And warmed them with her breast.

And in and out she softly flew,
With scarcely room to pass,
So close the prickly covert drooped
Its curtain on the grass.

A gentle heart, in passing near,
The leafy shelter spied,
And with a loving, kind intent,
Turned the sharp leaf aside.

It really seemed too rough a thing,
To shadow such a nest;
The pricks might wound some unfledged wing,
Or pierce some tender breast.

Alas! the wisdom, so unwise
That knew not what it did!
The prickly leaves, from dripping skies,
The open nest had hid.

And now the cold rain fell anew
The roofless nest around;
The covert from the storm was gone,
The little brood was drowned.

So may our sharp defenses be,
A proof 'gainst grief and care;
A shelter from a fiercer storm,
Or a more fatal snare.

OLD AND NEW SAWS.

A grain of produce is worth a pound of craft.
Roasters are cousins to liars.
Confession of faults makes half amends.
Denying a fault doubles it.
Envy shooteth at another and woundeth itself.
Foolish fear doubles danger.
God reaches us good things by our own hands.
He has hard work who has nothing to do.
It costs more to avenge wrongs than it does to bear them.
Knavery is the worst trade.
Learning makes a man fit company for himself.
Modesty is a guard to virtue.
Not to hear conscience is a way to silence it.
One hour to-day is worth two to-morrow.
Proud looks make foul words in their faces.
Quiet conscience gives quiet sleep.
Richest is he that wants the least.
Small thoughts indulged are little thieves.
The boughs that bear most hang lowest.
Upright walking is sure walking.
Virtue and happiness are near kin.
True men make more opportunities than they find.
You never lose by doing a good turn.
Zeal without knowledge is fire without light.

The fly has his uses. He serves to keep bald-headed sinners awake at church on a warm Summer's day, so that their unregenerate hearts may be touched by the preached word. He also encourages the spirit of invention, inducing the inventive to tax their brains in contriving fly traps. As it is through trials alone that a patient spirit reaches its full and complete development, the fly is a useful agent in the good work; for the man who can patiently endure the persistent efforts of a fly to light upon the end of his nose on a warm day has very nearly reached the perfection of patient beatitude.

A lady once said "it was not the talkers she was afraid of, it was the listeners." That only shows how necessary it is to talk wisdom.

Washington's Laugh.

It is pleasant to learn that once upon a time, Washington not only laughed, but "fairly roared." The biographers have so swathed him with dignity, that the man seemed lost in the hero. A writer in Lippincott's Magazine tells the following story, which she heard when a little girl, from Mrs. Madison: "One day, in Philadelphia," said Mistress Dolly Madison, "I was sitting in my parlor with a very dear friend, Mrs. R. B. Lee, when in walked Payne Todd (her son) dressed in my calico bed gown. While we were laughing at the figure he cut, the servant threw open the door and announced General and Mrs. Washington. What to do with that dreadful boy, I didn't know. He could not face the President in that garb. Neither could he leave the room without meeting them, for the door they were entering was the only one. I made him crawl quickly under a low, broad settee, on which I was sitting. I had just time to arrange the drapery when the Washingtons entered. After the courtly greetings and the usual compliments of the season, there came from under the settee a heavy sigh which evidently attracted the general's notice. However I only talked and laughed a little louder, hoping to divert his attention when—oh me! there came an outcry and a kick that could not be ignored. So I stooped down and dragged Payne out by the leg. Gen. Washington's dignity left him for once. Laugh! Why, he fairly roared. He nearly went into convulsions. The sight of that boy in that gown all so unexpected, coming wrong end first, from under my seat—it was too much."

The Family Hammer.

True to life is the following from one of the American humorists, upon that exasperating subject, "The family hammer."

No well-regulated family pretends to be without a hammer. And yet there is nothing that goes to make up the equipment of a domestic establishment that causes one-half as much agony and profanity as a hammer. It is always an old hammer, with a handle that is inclined to sliver, and always bound to slip. The face is always as a full moon and as smooth as glass. When it glides off a nail and mashes a finger we unhesitatingly deposit it in the back yard, and observe that we will never use it again. But the blood has hardly dried on the rag before we are in search of the same hammer again, and ready to make another trial. The result rarely varies, but we never profit by it. The awful weapon goes on knocking off our nails, and mashing whole joints, and slipping off the handle to the confusion of mantel ornaments, and breaking the commandments. Yet we put up with it, and put the handle on again, and lay it away where it wont get lost, and do up our smarting and mutilated fingers; and, after all, if the outrageous thing should disappear, we kick up a terrible hallabaloo until it is found again. Talk about the tyrannizing influence of a bad habit. It is not to be compared with the family hammer.

Peculiarities of London Shops.

English tradesmen have the most peculiar way of only keeping one or two of the component parts of a divisible object if the rest of it happens not to exactly belong to their line of business, and so you have to keep trotting around to a dozen stores sometimes to find a thing that in America you would have been sure to be able to purchase en bloc. The other day an American gentleman started out from the Langham to purchase a scrap book and mucilage bottle. He bought the scrap book, but found this stationer did not keep mucilage and was directed to another for that; and after buying the mucilage he was surprised to find that the bottle had no brush, nor did this merchant keep brushes, and to obtain a brush he was obliged to go to a third vender. To this individual he expressed surprise at this odd way of doing business, and said: "Now, in America, I should have found all these things in the first store I went into."

"Indeed!" replied the shopkeeper. "They must have a very large capital, then."

"No," answered the gentleman; "but they have a singular knack of keeping the things that people want." To buy eight shillings' worth of things he had spent twelve shillings for car hire.

Jonah ought to congratulate himself on how much safer he was in the whale's belly, than he would have been in an iron-clad man-of war.

The secret of success in every undertaking lies, for the most part, in the completeness of the arrangements for accomplishing the thing undertaken.

A Female Detective.

A woman recently died in London whose career furnishes incident enough for half a dozen sensation novels. For several years she served the authorities of Scotland Yard as a detective. Placing herself in relation with the parish doctor she volunteered to nurse those families whose honesty was suspected by the authorities. As a nurse she disarmed all suspicion, and did not fail to take careful notes of all she heard. Her manners were also apparently so loose and low that but little restraint was observed in her presence, and her reports forwarded to the Scotland yard were thus rendered all the more valuable. While engaged in her duties, she extracted from her half unconscious and debilitated fever patients the confession of some dark deed, and hints as to the where abouts of confederates in crime. Such was the general plan of action observed by this extraordinary woman; but this was rather a slow process, and at times it was necessary to fall at once upon the wrongdoer. On one occasion, for instance, the police received information that there was a gang of false money makers in a certain street, but notwithstanding every effort they were unable to ascertain in which house the coiners worked. The services of the female detective were thereupon requisitioned, and she was despatched to the street in question to see what could be done. Feigning violent illness, she persuaded a child who issued from one of the suspected houses, to take her indoors for a moment. The sudden entrance thus obtained enabled the detective to hear the metallic sounds proceeding from the coiner's workshop before the latter were aware that any stranger was in the house. But they soon discovered their danger, and the chief of the gang, in his fury, hurled a ladle full of molten lead at her head. Fortunately the poke bonnet that she wore saved her life; the burns she received were not fatal, though they destroyed her hair and its roots. The police arrived in time, on hearing the alarm, to arrest eighteen coiners. After this, she disguised herself as a boy, and penetrated many a thieves' den. On one occasion she was discovered, and struck down with a blow which fractured her skull, before the police came to her aid. Still undaunted, with returning health she resumed her dangerous occupation, often engaging in hand to hand fights, and armed with the magic whistle, rattle, and number given her by the authorities, and which ensured the assistance of every policeman, stranger or not whose services she might find it necessary to call. Sickness at last subdued this turbulent spirit, and thieves need no longer fear the visits of the female detective.

Amid the wreck of matter and the crash of closing large hotels there must always be one bright ray to illumine the succeeding gloom, and that is found in the transformation of the festive hotel clerk. That immaculate young gentleman with diamond pin, inevitable curly hair and more than inevitable insolence, who frowns the best of us down in flush times, now leans against the door-post sadly dejected. That calm gray eye which erst pierced our bosom's core, now rests benignly upon us as he says demurely: "Yes, sir, I shall take pleasure in showing you the chair over which Alex. Stephens used to hang his pantaloons." We care nothing for the chair or the illustrious pantaloons, but we have humbled that clerk and are happy.—Washington Post.

The pavilion of insects in the Paris exposition is curious; fleas, caterpillars, bugs, spiders and cockroaches, with the various powders and paints invented for their extermination, occupy about one-half the building, not extensively patronised, however, as the few adventurous spirits who have been tempted there usually appear uncomfortable on coming out, and as if impressed with the idea that the poisome insects are not all preserved specimens.

The experiment of girl cigar-makers has been eminently successful in New York. A number of dealers have had printed upon their labels. "These cigars were made by American girls."—Their customers rather like it.

Quinine is quoted at six dollars and a half an ounce, and it is much cheaper to keep the typhoid fever than to take quinine, besides being twice as pleasant.

About three-fifths of the jury trials in this country include at least one man on the jury who ought to have been born a mule.—Detroit Free Press.

A quack doctor advertises to this effect: "Cough while you can, for after taking one bottle of my mixture you can't."

An Extinct Race.

At the decoration of the graves of the Union soldiers in the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, B. F. Butler delivered an address on "The private soldier in the war of the rebellion." It was a touching theme. There is always a wonderful pathos in the speech or play or story, founded on a life that has ceased to exist. This is the charm of "Uncle Tom's Cabin;" this is the power of Joaquin Miller's "Danites," this must have lent tenderness and pathos to General Butler's address.

The "private soldier in the war of the rebellion." He is dead. Or lost.—Strayed or stolen, possibly. We do not know where he is, but he is not here.—He has gone away to some place. Perhaps if he were here he would be in the way. At any rate he is not around.—He does not go to the Legislature.—We do not find him in Congress. He is not eagerly sought as a candidate for anything. Nobody seems to know anything about him. Occasionally he appears at the pension list, with one leg, a wife and seven children, and $8 dollars a month. If flour takes much of a rise he will not last much longer at this rate and we will soon be deprived even of the occasional glimpse we have of him.

It is asserted, and quite generally believed, that at one time he was quite numerous, and was even considered rather convenient, if not, indeed, quite indispensable. It was found that upwards of 100 of him were necessary in order to secure mere line commissions for three eminent and deserving men. When field commissions were wanted for three even more eminent and great men upwards of 1,000 private soldiers were necessary.—One thousand! It seems an enormous number now, when by consulting the Congressional directory we find there are none in all this proud republic.—But 12 or 15 years ago, even that, incredible as it may appear to us to day, was considered a small number. There were private soldiers and private soldiers.—There were even hundreds of thousands of them.

And they were useful. They dug trenches; they constructed long lines of breastworks, and then, when an enemy came within sight, they climbed over them and went outside of them to fight. They worked and watched and fought. Co-operating with great and eminent men who have since passed to their rewards in one office or another, these private soldiers sometimes rendered very useful service in winning great battles. Oh, they were useful. Some historians have even gone so far as to maintain that without them the war could hardly have been carried to a successful termination. They were really quite useful.

And now they are all gone. It seems sad, looking back at the war, that none but the Generals and Colonels and Majors and line officers should have survived its dreadful ravages. Providence ever mindful of the wants of a great and growing nation, undoubtedly took special care of these great men, and in its great anxiety that the country should not suffer from a lack of eminent men, kind of forgot the private soldiers and let them wander away. And so they are all gone. Some of them got shot, some of them died. Some of them got married and moved out of the world, to settle upon tracts of Government land, where the Indians could get at them more easily. Some of them went into business. Some of them are teaching school. Some of them are driving dray. Some of them went away, and didn't leave their present address. But all the same, they are all gone, and it seems dreadfully lonesome without them.—There used to be so many of them.—Burlington Hawkeye.

A Tioga Sunday-school teacher was telling her scholars the other Sunday about a bad boy who stole a hundred dollars, when she was interrupted by one of her auditors with the query: "And how did he get such a bully chance."

To Remove Grease.—Spread two pieces of coarse brown paper over the grease spot, with a large pinch of buckwheat between them. Then place a warm flat-iron over the paper and let it remain until it cools.

Ex-Governor A. G. Brown of Mississippi says that he is amazed to see how little has been contribnted by the several Southern States for the Lee monument. Some of them, he says, have given nothing.

"How nicely the corn pops," said a young man, who was sitting with his sweetheart before the fire. "Yes," she responded, demurely, "it's got over being green."

It is a curious scientific fact that the success of a steam propeller is largely due to the fact that there's a screw loose somewhere.

Learn to Be Handy.

Some things it is difficult to teach men of age that can be developed in the young. Among farmers there is only an occasional one who has a tact in repairing things upon the farm. On so many places a gate is off the hinges; a door swings or rolls hard; a trace on the harness is split; the water during every rain goes through the roof; the cistern leaks, or some other of the thousand things that might be mentioned are wrong and need repairs, which require only a little time and proper tact to place and preserve in good condition. This necessary tact it is difficult to develop where there is no germ; but what we wish to say is that when the boys on the farm exhibit any genius in fixing up things, let it have full play; let them tinker and mend. The practice given them while young will be worth everything when they get homes of their own. Only the other day the writer visited a place where no post had been placed so as to save the gate when swinging, and it had been caught by the mud and one hinge broken; passing along to the house the foot-scraper was loose upon the step; the door bell wouldn't ring; and a knob was loose upon the door. The house was a fine one; the farm was a profitable one; but upon the place there was no one who had a genius for repairing.—Detroit Free Press.

Australian Divers.

Australian divers are in trouble. Recently, two of them, while engaged in pearl fishing, were drowned while at work in their diving dresses, and two swimming divers have been devoured by sharks. The sharks are now so numerous as to produce a perceptible falling off in the quantity of pearl shell obtained. One of the divers is described as losing his life in a singular way. He was walking along the bottom, which was very level and free from coral, when his life line became entangled round a large piece of cup-shaped coral, the only obstacle for a considerable distance. The boat to which he was attached was drifting with the tide as he walked on, and the life line getting foul, the boat was anchored, as it were. The strain thus brought on the line would appear to have drawn the diver down to the coral, and overwhelmed with alarm, he lost his presence of mind and cut the line. He might just as well have cut his throat, as by his thoughtless act he transferred the boat's strain from the rope to the air pipe, which soon pulled out of its socket in the helmet. It was some time before the body was recovered. It was on its back, and a knife was firmly clutched in the right hand.

Two objects sent by the universal peace union of Philadelphia are objects of much interest at the Paris exposition. They are a ploughshare and pruning hook made from swords. Mr. Thomas Attinson, an Indiana farmer, and a member of the peace society, offered $10 for the first sword presented for the purpose, and in reply Col. A. Grenael, of Iowa, presented his weapon, which had been worn by him during the Mexican war and in that for the Union. Mr. Atkinson then offered $5 for its conversion into a pruning hook. This was accomplished by Mr. Clayton B. Rogers, of Philadelphia. Col. David B. Franklin, of Pensylvania, and several other officers offered their swords, and another was sent by the widow of an officer, who did not wish to retain an object that perpetually reminded her of her husband's death. These swords were all melted and converted into a ploughshare. The two objects are surrounded by numerous peace society mottoes.

Emma Bartlett, an English woman, who started in the harness business in New York, some twenty years ago, on a capital of $1 75, and built an enormous trade, employing at one time as many as a hundred men, died in that city the other day. When at her best she weighed but eighty-four pounds, and was commonly known as "little Miss Bartlett."

Lotta has $200,000 worth of Government bonds. Is this young lady laboring under the impression that she can escape her duty to society? Why doesn't she marry and support a husband? By-the-by, she may find, with Miss Kellogg, that it's too late.

Ladies' swinging clubs are quite popular in London. The kind of clubs ladies swing in this country are broomsticks and rolling-pins, and they will never become popular with married men.

A door-knob fitted to receive and exhibit the head of the house has been invented. They will probably have a slow sale until families can determine who is the head of the house.

LAND DECISION.

The Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Atherton et al. vs. Fowler et al., has recently rendered a decision under the pre emption laws as to whether a pre-emptor could forcibly settle upon land in another man's possession and thereby initiate a right of pre emption. The Supreme Court says: "It is not to be presumed that Congress intended in the remote regions where these settlements are made to invite forcible invasion of the premises of another, in order to confer the gratuitous right of purchase on the invaders. In the parts of the country where these pre emptions are usually made, the protection of the law to rights of persons and property is generally but imperfect under the best of circumstances. It cannot, therefore, be believed, without the strongest evidence, that Congress has extended a standing invitation to the strong, the daring and the unscrupulous to dispossess by force the weak and the timid from actual improvements on the public land. that the intentional trespasser may secure by these means the preserved right to buy the land of the government when it comes into market.

A careful examination of the laws concerning the survey and sale of our public lands will show that nothing of this kind is sanctioned; and that so many other ways are open to purchasers of these lands that no such proceeding is necessary to enable any one to secure his rights.

But suppose the person in actual possession were not entitled to pre-emption "Does the policy of the pre-emption law authorize a stranger to thrust these men out of their houses, seize their improvements, and settle where they were settled and by these acts acquire initiatory rights of pre-emption?

The generosity by which Congress gave the settlers the right of pre emption was not intended to give him the benefit of another man's labor, and authorize him to turn that man and his family out of their home. It did not propose to give its bounty to settlements obtained by violence at the expense of others.

The right to make a settlement was to be exercised on unsettled land; to make improvements on unimproved land. To erect a dwelling did not mean to seize some other man's house.

It had reference to vacant land, to unimproved land, and it would have shocked the moral sense of the men who passed these laws if they had supposed they had extended an invitation to the pioneer population to acquire inchoate rights to the public lands by trespass, by violence, by robbery; by acts leading to homicide and other crimes of less moral turpitude.

It follows that the defendants were naked trespassers, making an unwarranted intrusion upon the enclosure of another—an enclosure and occupation of years, on which time and labor and money had been expended—and that in such a wrongful attempt to seize the fruits of other men's labor there could be no bona fide claim of right whatever.

The instruction of the Court that this could be done, founded on an erroneous view of the pre-emption law was itself erroneous, and the judgment founded on it must be reversed.

The judgment of the Supreme Court of California is, therefore, reversed, and the case remanded, with instructions to order a new trial, and for further proceedings in conformity with this opinion. —Southern Californian.

The above decision will not suit those who jumped town lots and houses in our town, and laid out money in repairing the "jumped" houses.

OUR CALIFORNIA NEWSPAPERS.—Oddly enough, California leads all the States of the Union in the matter of newspapers in proportion to her population, for while she has but 850,000 of the European race, she ranks fourth, New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois beating her in the publication of daily papers, her number being 43.4 more than Ohio, with 3,000,000 people; fifteen more than Massachusetts, where everybody is supposed to read; fifteen more than Indiana, seventeen more than Missouri, twenty more than Iowa, as many as Wisconsin, Virginia and Georgia combined, and eight times more than either Minnesota, Delaware or Oregon.—St. Louis Post.

Californians have a healthy way of spending the Summer. The habit which is so prevalent among the wealthier classes of the East of rushing to fashionable sea side resorts, to suffer a martyrdom of discomfort and inconvenience, is largely ignored in this State, and the tendency to fashionable dissipation is checked by the real healthful pleasure that is found in camping out. One charm of this camp-life is found in its freedom. In camp the shackles of conventionality can be laid aside and one can be just what he is. The real inner man, that is so often lost sight of in society, steps to the surface here, all that is artificial is left behind, and life becomes the simple, beautiful thing that it was in childhood before we had taken up the burdens which the world lays so unmercifully upon our shoulders.—Santa Barbara Press.

Thomas Walsh, of Plumas county, aged 102 years—having been born in Virginia in 1776— has recently located and proved up 160 acres of land in the United States Land Office at Sacramento.

The connection between the Sutro tunnel and the Comstock has not yet been made, and it is thought in Virginia that it will be delayed at least a month.

About $4,000,000 in silver has been exported from San Francisco to Chicago during the last two months.

A private letter from Paris says: "The American is chiefly noticeable for its display of shovels and false teeth."

SMALL FARMS.

Some of the heaviest land owners in this State are beginning to realize that they have been following a foolish policy in holding from settlement large tracts of land, or else the agitation of the land monopoly question in connection with the adoption of a new Constitution for this State has admonished them that they must alter their policy or prepare to bear, instead of shirk, a just proportion of the State and county taxation, as we notice that many large tracts are being cut up into small parcels, and offered for sale on terms that will enable men of limited means to acquire a homestead. This is as it should have been a score of years ago. There are thousands of men in this State anxious to secure homes if the land monopolists, who own the best and most productive lands in the State, will but give them an opportunity to do so. Small farms well tilled are what California needs. We want thousands of small farmers; those who are content with ten, twenty, thirty and fifty acre farms. It is the small farm that is well and closely looked after that is the most remunerative, and in nine cases out of ten the results from such are more satisfactory at the end of the year than they are with a broad expanse of acres. The most notable instance of the small farm fever is the contemplated cutting up of the McShafter farm of 13,000 acres in Marin county into small tracts, and which Mr. McShafter will doubtless dispose of on very favorable terms. It is to be hoped that the course of McShafter will be in time followed by most of the great land owners of the State. It was the small farm principle that enabled the French to pay their German debt so promptly, and if the same principle could but find favor in this State California would be one of the most favored States in the Union.

A Portland dispatch says "It is the belief of old residents in Eastern Oregon that all Indians in that section are disaffected, and that they will be ready, upon slight provocation to take up arms against the whites. Even the Warm Spring Indians, who have heretofore been strong friends of the Government, and who have on several occasions rendered efficient service against murderous tribes of their own race, refuse to join their forces against the Bannocks, and it is thought that a large party of them will join the hostiles. It begins to look as if the Indians intended to do their worst this Summer.

NEW PAPER.—We have received the first number of the Eureka Daily Leader, published at Eureka, Nevada, by Fred. E. Fisk, and C. L. Canfield. Mr. Fisk, when in his teens, was a resident of Silver Mountain, and "set" his first type in the ALPINE CHRONICLE office. The Leader presents a creditable appearance; but, Fred. you should insert your locals on the inside pages. We wish our young friend all the success he can hope for.

THE TRAINING SHIP.—We are in receipt of a copy of the Prospectus and rules and regulations governing the Training Ship Jamestown. Each county in this State is entitled to send a number of boys to that institution according to its population. Alpine is entitled to one. No one who has ever been convicted of a crime can be admitted.

A railroad war has broken out among the railroad companies at the East, and fares are being reduced between the principal cities in the West and New York. Californians might rejoice at this if it would make any difference in the overland rates, but those are kept as of old, whether fares are low or high in the East.

The Yreka (Siskiyou) county Journal says: "J. K. Luttrell sends us his speech on the Chinese question, all of which suits us; but J. K. has eaten many meals at his own house cooked by a Chinaman, and may yet, for aught we know."

SELECT LIST OF

LOCAL NEWSPAPERS

Many persons suppose this list to be composed of CHEAP, low-priced newspapers. The fact is quite otherwise. The Catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of a paper is printed in FULL FACE TYPE it is in every instance the best paper in the place. When printed in CAPITALS it is the ONLY paper in the place. When printed in roman letters it is neither the best nor the only paper, but is usually a very good one, notwithstanding. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper. IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST. IT IS NOT A CHEAP LIST. At the foot of the Catalogue for each State the important towns which are not covered by the list are enumerated. IT IS AN HONEST LIST. The rates charged for advertising are barely one-fifth the publishers' schedule. The price for one inch four weeks in the entire list is $635. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $3,136 35. The list includes 970 newspapers, of which 163 are issued DAILY and 807 WEEKLY. They are located in 825 different cities and towns, of which 22 are State Capitals, 328 places of over 5,000 population, and 444 County seats LISTS SENT ON APPLICATION. MECHANICS' STORE.

Notice to Dealers in General Merchandise.

Our Wholesale Establishment

OFFERS TO RETAIL DEALERS THE FOLLOWING LINES OF GOODS

Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats, Caps, Yankee Notions, Fancy Goods, Furnishing Goods, Trunks and Valises.

We claim to offer the following advantages to dealers: Buying our goods from manufacturers and jobbers East, in very large quantities, we obtain the closest prices, and, as our expenses will be much lower in Sacramento than for a similar business in San Francisco we shall be enabled to UNDERSELL ALL COMPETITORS.

Our terms will be strictly net cash, and no discount.

No goods will be permitted to leave our house unless the full amount has been paid for under any circumstances.

We shall mark all our goods in plain figures and sell them at one price.

We will never deviate from our marked price, no matter how large the order will be. This will enable the poorest judge of goods to obtain as much for the money as the closest and sharpest buyer.

We shall sell goods wholesale to Dealers and Peddlers only. Orders for customers will be filled from our retail department only.

☞ We shall fill orders and answer all communications promptly to any part of California, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Idaho, Arizona, Colorado and Montana. Address all letters,

WHOLESALE DEPARTMENT] WEINSTOCK & LUBIN, Sacramento, Cal.

IN OPENING OUT OUR WHOLESALE DEPARTMENT,

WE ARE NOW ENABLED TO OFFER

EXTRA INDUCEMENTS

IN THE WAY OF PRICES,

In Our Retail Stores,

FOR THE REASON THAT,

As we are now buying for our Wholesale Department, we buy in original cases and bales, thus obtaining large trade discounts, which will enable us to

SELL GOODS LOWER THAN ANY OTHER HOUSE

ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

One item alone, our stores, Nos. 98, 100, 102, 104 and 103 K street, would cost at least $24,000 a year for rent in San Francisco. We have no such expenses, as WE OWN OUR STORE PROPERTY.

WE ARE PREPARED TO OFFER UNUSUAL INDUCEMENTS IN

Dry Goods, Boys' Clothing, Summer Goods,

Boots, Shoes and Hats.

We are now importing our Laces, Linens, and Embroideries from manufacturers' agents direct and we shall in all cases GIVE FULL VALUE FOR THE MONEY, not alone to those who are judges, but to those who are no judges.

As our prices are marked plainly on every article in the house, and we sell at one price only, it is strictly against the rules of our house to permit any of our employes to misrepresent any article offered for sale. Cotton is not sold for Union Linen, nor Union Linen for pure linen; nor Satinet sold for Cassimere.

Any one in our employ who misrepresents any article is at once discharged, as we have found out by experience, that Principle, Duryan's Policy are all in favor of

THE HOUSE THAT DEALS HONORABLY TOWARDS ALL!

☞ We shall continue, as heretofore, to fill all orders for any part of the Pacific coast, and persons in the interior can rest assured that their orders will receive prompt and careful attention

☞ By our system of doing business, a person living hundreds of miles away can obtain as much for their money as one who applies personally to our store. All we want is a clear description of goods wanted, description of colors, sizes and proper address.

☞ We fill an order for twenty-five cents worth of goods with as much care as one for hundreds of dollars. Price List and Samples sent (free) to any part of the Pacific coast.

SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1878.

County Official Press.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

DEAD.—The Carson Valley News, published at Genoa, suspended publication on Saturday last. Brother Pratt favored its readers with the following valedictory:

"It is with some feelings of regret that we make this announcement, for we believe that Douglas County is in need of a local paper, and we know, too, that if the people could be united in their support that the printer would be paid for his work; but when the patronage is confined to only a portion of our spare population, it either becomes burdensome to them or unremunerative to us. We are therefore obliged to seek more lucrative employment, however glad we would be to serve those who have so generously patronized us for the past four years. A newspaper to advocate the interests of the people must necessarily make more or less enemies and thereby lose their patronage. In a small county like this there is none to lose; hence the very independence which makes a paper desirable, is sure to prove fatal in the end, where one half the people cannot bear it out. Feeling that we have done our duty to the last, we now step down and out.

That the News should have been tolerated any considerable length of time by the people of Douglas county is beyond our comprehension. A "patent outside," and of small dimensions, its local column and general make up were the personification of sheer dazziness.—And at no time was this lack of energy more apparent than during the past few months when Mr. Pratt left it in charge of Mr. Smith—the Smith who has removed to Markleeville to "mould public opinion in Alpine." It was a grim joke of Pratt in "roping" his skeleton upon his unsophisticated victims, and making Alpine county an almshouse, and entailing such a burden upon our people. What has Alpine done to require a chastisement of this kind?—Pratt seemed to be oblivious to the fact that Nevada has an Insane Asylum.

News reached here last evening of the burning to death yesterday afternoon, at Dayton, of Mrs. Wm. Williamson.—Several versions of the very sad affair were in circulation, but the most generally accepted one was that Mrs. Williamson, who had got some things out of the burning house, went back for more, was unable to open the door which closed after her, and perished in the burning building.—Carson Appeal, July 3d.

Mrs. Williamson was well known in Alpine, having resided at Markleeville for several years past, and having two sisters—Mrs. Tom Chambers and Mrs. Ezra Jarvis, residing at Monitor. A large circle of friends and acquaintances here deeply sympathize with her relatives.

ELECTED.—The following were elected School Trustees of Franklin District, Silver Mountain, on Saturday last: H. C. Ginn, N. D. Arnot, Jr. and R. H. Ford. After the election, the newly-elected drew for their respective terms. Ginn drew for 3 years, Arnot for 2, and Ford for 1 year. The School law, however, provides that the electors shall elect for the respective terms. There were no polls opened at Monitor or Woodfords.

JACK FROST.—This unwelcome visitor at this season of the year put in an appearance in this section on Wednesday and Thursday nights, and made sad havoc on the ranches and in our gardens with the "sass"—everything in the vegetable line having been nipped. This is a serious blow to our farmers, many of whom will be compelled to re plant, or come short of their yearly produce.

JOINT DELEGATE.—The official vote of El Dorado on joint delegate foots up as follows: Dean (W) 1,007; Hunter (W) 986; Patten (N. P.) 551; Coleman (N. P.) 449. Alpine—Coleman, 130; Patten, 127; Dean, 9; Crawford, 3. Total, Dean, 1016; Hunter, 986, Patten, 681; Coleman, 579; Dean over Coleman, 437; Hunter over Coleman, 407; Patten over Coleman, 102.

GREEN THINGS.—The army worm is said to be working up into the mountains from Amador. It would be terrible if they should put in an appearance at the "orange groves of Markleeville," and devour the green things that have sprouted at the capital amid a lot of old type.

BOLD.—About 9 o'clock this morning a coyote made his appearance in town and crossed past our office, with several dogs in hot pursuit. The bold visitor crossed the creek and made a bee line for the mountain.

EARTHQUAKE.—A heavy shock of earthquake was felt at Silver Mountain, Bullion and Monitor at about 15 minutes before nine o'clock yesterday morning. It came from the southwest.

MORE SHEEP.—About 2,000 sheep belonging to Robinson & Dickens, of Calaveras, passed through our town on Saturday last, for their grazing ground at the base of Silver Mountain Peak.

THE DRIVE.—The wood drivers reached Mt Bullion last evening.

THE FOURTH.—The only celebration in Alpine county was at Hot Springs Valley, where a picnic and ball were in order. All sections of the county were represented, and everything was pleasant and satisfactory.

QUIET.—The Fourth was an unusually quiet day in this town, some of our people spending the day at the Hot Springs and in Hermit Valley.

COLD.—This week the weather has been cold, with high winds prevailing. Ice formed on Wednesday and Thursday night in this section.

The corn crop in Carson Valley was seriously injured by the late visit of Jack Frost.

Patent Outsides.

The publishers of the "patent outsides," that is, the publishers of the "patent" half of these mongrel sheets—lay great stress upon the value of their publications as advertising mediums.

They claim to be able to secure the insertion of an advertisement in scores of papers throughout the State at a very small expense to the advertiser; and they ask for patronage from advertisers on that account. We desire to call the attention of persons who wish to advertise throught the State to the fact that these "patent outside" newspapers are the poorest and dearest advertising mediums that can be found—not excepting a rail fence, or the back side of a barn.

One reason that makes an advertisement in the "patent" of little value to the advertiser is the fact that the side of the paper which it is printed on has nothing of local interest in it, and is not looked at by any considerable portion of the few persons who do take the paper for sake of the local matter that is contained in it. A paper that is wholly printed where it is published contains matter of local interest upon every page, and every one of its pages are read. A "foreign" advertisement which is surrounded by local advertisements is obviously more apt to be read than the same advertisement would be if it was in a page that is filled with foreign advertisements like itself. Any person who has any knowledge of advertising is well aware of this fact.—Napa Register.

THE INDIAN WAR EXAGGERATED.—Great damage has been done to every portion of this Territory by the exaggerated accounts of our Indian war sent abroad. Some of our exchanges have glaring heads with such statements as "Thousands of Indians on the Warpath" "The Country in arms," and many others of a sensational and thrilling character. Such exaggerated stories are excusable in the East, as they are circulated and sent abroad from Boise City. When the war began several settlements were exposed to the hostiles, but now we do not apprehend any danger outside of Camas Prairie, which belongs to the Indians. They are undoubtedly fighting for it, and should have it. The whites have no more right to take possession of this prairie than the Indians would have to take Boise Valley, and as soon as the Government learns the true situation we think the trouble can be easily settled, notwithstanding there are a few who desire to see the war continue all Summer in order to make capital out of it. If all the journals of the Territory would endeavor to give the situation as it really is, a great deal of good might be accomplished. During the whole war, which has been heralded abroad as one of immense proportions we know of only six white men having been killed—four settlers and two volunteers. Whole columns appear in distant papers, giving the manenvrings of the two armies. Emigrants on the road here have sought homes in other States and Territories, and directly and indirectly the damage done to Idaho has been enormous.—Idaho City World.

We learn from certain parties from Pyramid, that a few days ago a party of Bannack and Snake Indians killed at one time two Pinte and the next three Pinte Indians, between Pyramid and Mud lakes because these Pintes would not join the Bannacks in their war against the whites. The Pintes around Pyramid lake are gathering in to the Pyramid reservation for safety. Two Bannacks have been in Reno, it is presumed, attempting to persuade the Pintes and Washoes to join in the Indian war. We have not learned that they have been in any degree successful.—Another rumor has obtained circulation that a raid may be expected on the stock in Smoky Creek, which is ninety miles north of this place. It might be well for our citizens to discourage all attempts to induce the Pintes and Washoes to take any part in this Indian war or any predatory Indian excursions.—Reno Journal.

United States Surveyor-General Wagner, of California, has issued an order requiring all employes to be at their desks punctually at nine A. M. and there remain until noon-time, when one-half hour is allowed for lunch, and returning to their work at half past twelve, employes must remain in attendance without intermission until four o'clock P. M. and no extra work either before or after that time will be permitted, except by special permission from the Surveyor-General or Chief Clerk. Employes will not be allowed to do extra work to be paid for in addition to their salaries, as their time belongs to the United States.

Benton (Miss.) Argus (Dem.) says: There is no difficulty in discovering who the shallow pated ninnies in Congress are, for all know them to be conscientious gentlemen on the Democratic side of the House, who dance to the tune of "Investigation," sung by the tax-dodging, weak-backed Sammy, and Republican sharpers, who have outgeneraled these same Democratic, Websterian statesmen on every occasion, and who are now completely "pulling the wool over their eyes."

BRONCHITIS, COUGHS, COLDS AND THROAT DISEASES, if suffered to progress, result in serious pulmonary affections, oftentimes incurable. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" reach directly the seat of the disease, and give almost instant relief.

SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1878.

MY MOTHER.

Back through the lapse of lonely years,
Of light and shade, and bitter tears,
I seem to hear

My mother's voice, soft, sweet and low—
My mother's voice, and well I know
Its cadence dear.

On sitting, when the night-bird wings
His homeward flight, and sadly sings
A plaintive song,

Then memory waves her magic wand,
And summons from the silent land
Dear ones long gone.

Again I stand by mother's knee,
Again her sainted face I see,
As in a dream.

Then asks my heart, with voice of tears,
For her; alas! the sad, sad years
Lie dark between.

O! mother, from that sphere divine,
On wings of light cleave realms of time,
Come thou to me

Lonly for a little space,
That I may look on thy dear face;
One moment see,

As once I saw, thy tender eyes,
That knows not tears in Paradise,
Grieved nomore.

I watch for thee, O! mother dear;
I listen, and I seem to hear
Thy songs float o'er

That lonely river, deep and wide,
Which darkly rolls the Stygian tide
From shore to shore;

Silent and deep through lonely years,
Swollen with bitter farewell tears
Forever more,

Trusting, I'll wait while life lasts here,
Till in that grand, immortal sphere,
Where sorrows cease,

We meet, and on thy loving breast
My weary head shall be at rest
In perfect peace.

SELF-MADE MEN.

Take the history of most of the prominent men of this country, and it will be seen that they are what are called the self-made men. They were not born to wealth or distinction or position, but through their ability and energy, they gained one, perhaps all.

Andrew Johnson was essentially a self-made man. He came of very poor parents in humble life, and enjoyed no educational advantages. While working as an apprentice in a tailor's shop, he too read, and after he was married he learned to write and cipher through the instructions of his wife. He was possessed of ability and persistence, and rose gradually to a high place in the national councils.

Cornelius Vanderbilt of New York, who was worth his millions, began life as a brakeman. He owned his own boat when eighteen, and navigated it himself. Honest, enterprising, and industrious, he rose to be one of the richest men in this country, and was universally respected for his good qualities.

Geo. Peabody, who was also one of the richest men in America, was born of poor parents at Dedham, Mass. All his early life was spent as a clerk in a grocery store. His immense fortune was accumulated as a banker, and he was liberal of his means, giving away millions.

From a very small beginning he accumulated a fortune of $30,000,000.

Henry Wilson's beginning was as humble as that of Andrew Johnson's. From a farm boy he became a shoemaker and gradually won the position he held at the time of his death. He was possessed of energy and ambition, two great incentives which pushed him forward to the high position he so nobly filled.

Horace Greeley, who ranked with the best American journalists, was a poor farm boy. From the farm he went to the printing office, and, step by step rose to be one of the most eminent journalists in America.

Peter Cooper, the great philanthropist of New York, is a self-made man. He did not remain at his trade, but took to manufacturing articles, among which was glue. He expended several millions in founding the Cooper Institute, where pupils can obtain free instruction in several branches. There is no man more beloved in New York, and deservedly so, than old Peter Cooper.

These are a few of the self-made men of America, and their examples should inspire our youth to be industrious, persistent, and enterprising, for these are among the qualities by which the characters we have been contemplating rose to eminence—the rounds by which they climbed to success.

They have a singular kind of dance conducted on the greens of country villages in Russia. The dancers stand apart, a knot of young men here, a knot of maidens there, each sex by itself, and silent as a band of mutes. A piper breaks into a tune; a youth pulls off his cap, and challenges his girl with a wave and a bow. If the girl is willing she waves her handkerchief in token of assent; the youth advances, takes a corner of the kerchief in his hand, and leads his lassie round and round. No word is spoken, and no laugh is heard. Stiff with cords and rich with braids, the girl moves heavily by herself, going round and round, and never allowing her partner to touch her hand. The pipe goes droning on for hours in the same sad key and measure, and the prize of merit in this "circling," as the dance is called, is given by the spectators to the lassie who, in all that summer revelry, has never spoken and never smiled.

Within ten years all parts of the interior of Africa will be rendered accessible by roads opened and kept in order by business and philanthropic enterprises. The International Society of Exploration, under the presidency of the King of the Belgians, is preparing to run an avenue for trade across the continent, from Loango to Zanzibar, while cross sections will be cut to important points north and south. The English will work these up from their possessions in the south; the French will push south from Algeria across the Sahara Desert, and the Germans and Italians from the northeast coast. Missionary and commercial stations will thus cease to be isolated, and the reclamation of the entire continent from the devastations of the slave trade will be sure if slow.

The uniform scale of racing weights as adopted by the Kentucky Association is as follows: In purse races for two-year-olds, 86 pounds; three-year-olds, 95 pounds; four-year-olds, 110 pounds; five-year-olds, 115 pounds; six-year-olds, and upwards, 118 pounds. In sweepstakes for two-year-olds, exclusively, 100 pounds; three year-olds, 103 pounds; usual allowance for mares and geldings.

Cheerfulness makes the mind clearer, gives tone to thought, and adds grace and beauty to the countenance.

Fifty thousand dollars have been spent on the sewerage of Marlborough House by the Prince of Wales. What a drain this must be for the finances of the nation!—Commercial Advertiser.

The only wreath laid upon Victor Emanuel's coffin when it was walled up in the Tribune of the Pantheon, at Rome, was that sent by Queen Victoria. The others were hung around the walls of the chamber.

M. Terrell has shown, from numerous analyses made from the principal ores of iron, that this metal, like platinum, is always accompanied in its ores by other metals, among which are manganese, nickel, cobalt, vanadium, titanium, tungsten, chromium and copper.

The Italian peasants believe that soon the Pope and the King are to be one; there is a prophecy to that effect. To this end they believe that Prince Amadeo is to become a priest, be elevated to the Papacy, and succeed to the crown by the death of his brother and his next heirs.

Philadelphia is losing its character for "white marble and white shutters. Brown stone, green settees, and marble fronts have increased to such an extent as to change the aspect of many sections of the city. Mansard roofs and bay windows have come very much in vogue, and front shutters in the new styles of houses are generally painted with. Inside shutters are coming into fashion.—N. Y. Sun.

One of the most inexplicable explosions we have recently met with is the Iron Works, in Attleboro county, Pa., when a team-load of cartridges and not cinders into a low house, blowing the innocent inmates into eternity, in which is described as "dreadful." Houses a hundred rods away were shaken, and persons near deafened and even dying cinders.

M. Trouve has experimented with a view to render the Bell telephone more sensitive, in order that ordinary conversations may be sent to greater distances than are now practicable. He substitutes a cube, or a polyhedron, with a vibrating membrane on each of the sides, so as to multiply the number of induced currents, and thus give the electric waves greater intensity.—Les Mondes.

According to recent returns France has 1,982 important bridges, erected at a cost of nearly sixty million dollars. Eight hundred and sixty-one were in existence at the beginning of the century, 64 were erected under Napoleon I., 150 under the restoration, 500 under Louis Philippe, and 257 since 1848. Of the eleven principal bridges only two are in Paris. Nearly four million dollars have, within the last four years, been spent in building and repairing bridges in that city.

Piano keys cannot be properly bleached unless they are removed from the instrument. One way is to rub the ivory with pounded pumice stone and water, and place it, while moist, under a glass shade and expose it to the sunshine. A new method, discovered by M. Cloez, is to scrape the bone or ivory in oil of turpentine and expose it to the light for three or four days. The substance to be bleached must not rest on the bottom of the vessel, as a thin acrid matter is deposited during the operation.—Boston Journal of Chemistry.

A London journal quotes from the "Transactions of the Medical Society of Upsala" an account of an ingenious piece of rascality in the hop trade, said to be practised on a considerable scale in that city. Hops which have already been used for making extracts, or for brewing in the ordinary way, are damped with tincture of absinthe or wormwood, freed from spirit by distillation, redried, and then placed upon the market as a genuine article, with or without the addition of a little fresh bloom. Owing to their increased bitterness, they often command a better price than unadulterated hops.

An English clergyman relates that two English sisters had an audience with the late Pope Pius IX, and as they were withdrawing one of them lingered. The Pope asked her what she wished, and she, being a convert to the Roman Catholic faith, answered: "The prayers of your Holiness that my sister may be converted from Protestantism, so that we may not be separated after death." The Pope, placing his hand upon her clasped hands as she knelt, answered: "Daughter, those who love God will not be separated in the next world."

Ralph Waldo Emerson, in a recent Boston lecture, said: "Our young men lack idealism. A man to be a success, must not be a pure idealist, but he must have ideas. He does not want to be sun dazzled or sun-mired, but he must have glimmer enough to keep him from knocking his head against the wall. We want men of originality, with ideas wider than their nationality, and doing in the interests of the race and of civilization. We need men of moral and electric force, who can live in the moment and take a step forward. Columbus was not a backward looking crab, nor was Martin Luther nor John Adams, nor Patrick Henry, nor Thomas Jefferson."

The Benjamin Franklin Fund, which is the accumulation of $5,000 left by the philosopher in 1790 to the city of Boston, for the purpose of furnishing loans to young mechanics, in an elephant on the hands of that city. Franklin reckoned that in 100 years the fund would amount to about $500,000 of which $500,000 should then go to the city for public improvements, and the remaining $500,000 be invested in the same way for another 100 years. The sum has now amounted to over $320,000, but for various reasons the young mechanics don't avail themselves of it, and the trustees are straining their brains to devise some means by which the intentions of the testator can be carried out and the fund kept from lying idle.

A very extraordinary condition of things exists in England as regards the institution of clergymen to livings. The Bishop of Peterborough, for instance, stated in 1875 that since he had been Bishop he had been called upon to institute one clergyman who was paralytic; another so aged and infirm that he applied for leave of perpetual absence; a third who was a reclaimed drunkard, and whose intemperance had occurred in a neighboring parish; and a fourth who had resigned a public office rather than face a charge of the most horrible immorality. In each of these cases the facts were well known to the parties presenting these persons to livings; but as regards every one of them, the Bishop was advised that he had no legal power to refuse institution.

Farm tools are seldom worn out, but more often become brittle by exposure, and thus break or become rickety. Plows, cultivators, horse-rakes, etc., are simply varnished when sold, and a few months of use removes this. They should then receive a good coat of paint. The farm wagons also need repainting at times. When kept well painted, the wheels will not shrink so much, thus requiring less tire-setting. Every farmer should have a pot of paint and a brush. They will save ten times their cost each year if put to good use.—American Rural Home.

A Plentiful Supply of Good Reading and Beautiful Pictures WILL DO IT.

THE CINCINNATI

WEEKLY STAR,

A fine eight-page paper, with a full estimate, comes to you by all the year round (we pay postage), and is just the paper for brightness, and pure, popular reading for the money. It is independent in politics, gives all the news, and, besides much other good reading, every number has three or four excellent original or selected stories. Every subscriber also receives a copy of the beautiful engraving, "The Keeper of Stone Lodge," 22x28 inches, and worth $5 in any art store. Also a copy of THE STAR ILLUSTRATED ALMANAC. 32 cts. extra must be sent to pay expense of packing and mailing premiums. Many more premiums. Agents, always the most liberal in the field, are now greater than ever. We want every club agent in the country to commence work at once before the season's work. To any person desiring to get up a club, we will send a sample copy of the paper and a catalogue of premiums, and a specimen copy of the engraving, free of charge. Address as above. Agents wanted for every county. Long time given. Liberal terms.

To those to whom we have already sent the picture, we say, please take it to your friends. Every subscriber to the Star will have in his stead another premium engraving, of equal size, which we have secured for this purpose.

Address STAR STOCK CO., 230 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.
